Glory Psalm 96

God's glory is far too significant to hold in quiet reflection. The glory we celebrate at Christmas compels us to _____ it to the _____ in every way we can find to express it.

Discussion 1. How many ways can you think of that Christ followers have found to “proclaim God’s glory” to the rest of the world? Do you think there are any limits on how many ways we can find to do this? Why or why not?

In light of the indescribable _____ of _____, worshipping anything less than Him seems ridiculous. No other “glory” can compare.

Discussion 2. Can you recall a time or circumstance when you experienced the incomparable glory of God? If so, how would you describe it? If not, what is the closest you believe you have come to experiencing it?

The Christ follower's worship of God is an acknowledgment of all that God's glory is, and has ever been and always will be. The _____ of God's glory makes it easy to worship.

Discussion 3. How does thinking about God’s glory across the entire timeline (past, present and future) impact how you worship? Why is it different?

*The glory of the coming kingdom of God means Jesus will fix everything that is broken: relationships, families, nations, wars, famines, even _____.
“Glory to God and peace on earth” is a vision of everything wrong being made right.*

Discussion 4. If God’s kingdom will eventually fix everything that is broken (even nature itself), how does that impact your worship? Do you enjoy worshipping in nature? Why or why not?
